Lamb's Taste In Books.

In this catalogue of books which are no books—biblia-abilia—I reckon court calendars, directories, pocketbooks (the literary excepted), draught boards bound and lettered on the back, scientific treatises, almanacs, statutes at large, the works of Hume, Gibbon, Robertson, Beattie, Soume Jouyus and generally all those volumes "which no gentleman's library should be without," the histories of Flavius Josephus (that learned Jew) and Paley's "Moral Philosophy." With these exceptions I can read almost anything. I bless my stars for a taste so catholic, so unexcluding. —Charles Lamb.

Useful Spiders.

A French savant points out that spiders' webs improve the acoustic properties of a room. He says he knew in England a hall that was ideal for the conveyance of sound. In an evil moment it was decided to clean the ceilings, and all the spiders were dislodged. The hall was ruined as a place for speaking. The savant suggests that cotton strings might be hung loosely across ceilings to improve the sound carrying properties of the room.

About the Limit.

Mr. Showman on the occasion of his fiftieth call—It's funny, Miss Peppers, that I should be so absent minded, but I really can't think what I have come here to see you about.
